DISPLAY AND BUSINESS CARD ADS – DETAILS AND RATES

The deadline is the first of the month for display and business card ad artwork, payment and repeat requests.

Advertising is accepted only for early items related to radio, communication, etc. All items must be described fairly; reproductions, reprints and not-original items must be so identified. Advertisers must agree to respond promptly to inquiries and orders, to resolve problems promptly if the buyer is not satisfied, and to comply with a buyer's refund request on unaltered returned items.

Advertising must be prepaid, except as noted below; see "Payment" paragraph above for details. Late ads will be run only if space and time permit. Since artwork is reduced to 63% in the printing process, originals must be the artwork size listed below. Do not send in artwork on art board or send negatives. Ads should be typeset or typed neatly with a carbon ribbon, black ink (not pencil) on white. If used, reverse type must be limited to 25% of the ad. If you want us to prepare your ad, include the one-time cost below for A.R.C. to make up the ad.

Photos should be at an 85-line screen; otherwise, add $12.00 per photo for screening. Do not cut or trim photos or glue photos to artwork; submit separately.

If you are confused by these requirements and terms, please contact A.R.C. before beginning to prepare your ad. We will be happy to advise you on your ad ideas, estimate how much the ad will cost, recommend an ad size, etc.

We assume that advertisers want all ads which are submitted to run without delay; therefore, we will run the ad and bill for any additional work required for the ad to meet these specifications. A late ad will run beginning with the next month. "Tear sheets" will be sent only for 1/8-page or larger ads and only if requested when the ad is submitted.

Business card ads are limited to one per advertiser.

The 3-month rates represent about an 11% discount, the 6-month rates 23%, the 12-month rates 30%. Placement requests: add 15% but call first. Clubs: write for discount policy.

ANTIQUE RADIO CLASSIFIED

EDITOR'S COMMENTS

It's that holiday time again! And although the G.O.P. may seem to be doing all the rejoicing, we radio collectors know that the real reason "'tis the season to be jolly" is the continuing growth of interest in our avocation.

This month's cover takes us back to another period of phenomenal growth — the early days of the radio industry. A.R.C. should have been around in 1923 to help Santa supply the tremendous demand for radios. According to Radio Retailing magazine for March 1932, 250,000 sets were sold in 1923 and by the end of 1924, 1,500,000 sets had been sold. Sales were growing at over 100% per year! Small wonder that we collectors are always able to find something new and interesting about the products of those boom years.

Our lead article explores something new and interesting from the 1930s. Since A.R.C.'s home state resisted the national urge to put on a conservative face, the Clinton campaign — radio campaign, that is — continues with an article by Jim Fred. Jim reports on his search for information about Clinton, which, in addition to selling radios under its own brand name, manufactured sets for a number of other companies.

Zenith's small cathedral set, the Model 805, is described by Richard Arnold. About 15" high, this 5-tube superhet's coverage included amateur, police, and aviation bands, as well as the broadcast band.

Doug Houston writes about the wireless record players that appeared in the mid- to late 1930s. These devices — record players without the associated bulky amplifiers and speakers — transmitted phonograph music to the quality radio receiver already in the home.

Today, wireless record players are used by radio collectors to demonstrate their vintage sets, and Robert Lozier reviews a recording by the Vince Giordano Nighthawks, which is perfect for such broadcasts.

While many collectors specialize in collecting crystal sets, some specialize in the crystal detectors themselves. Finding these items to be rare, Wally Worth decided to replicate a number of the simpler and popular detectors, and he describes them for us in his article. Wally marks each with his name so that if a detector finds its way outside of his collection, it will be recognized as a replica.

Two radio clubs celebrate their 20th anniversaries this year — the Texas Vintage Radio and Phonograph Society (VRPS) and the Kansas City area Mid-America Antique Radio Club (MAARC). This month, we have a Club Spotlight on MAARC and a meet and auction report on the fall VRPS convention.

The VRPS convention, held near Dallas, Texas, was attended by over 400 people. George and Michael Potter report on the meet and its huge auction of over 900 items with total proceeds exceeding $50,000. This meet is similar to most multiday collector meets, but it differs in the scheduling of its auctions and flea market — the VRPS has auctions the first two days, followed by a flea market on the last day. This plan works very well. With the auctions being first, everyone has an equal chance to obtain an item without having to get up at the crack of dawn to participate in a flea market frenzy. VRPS is to be commended for its maverick approach.

Radio Miscellanea contains a variety of hints and comments. Photo Review shows sets from the 1920s to the 1950s and includes an interesting decorative cone speaker by Pathé.

Separating For Sale and Wanted Ads. The experiment begun last month of page-separation of ads received overwhelming support from you, our readers. We are continuing it this month, and next month, we will print your comments. Are any of you against the new format? We failed to find any letter that clearly stated that its writer wants us to go back to mixing the ads again.

New Books. Two new books are notable this month — the new book on novelty radios by Robert Breed and Marty Bunis and the soon-to-be-published and much needed book on Zenith Trans-Oceanic radios by John Bryant and Harold Cones. A.R.C. will have an article related to this book in a coming issue.

Renew Now and Save! December is your last chance to avoid A.R.C.'s several-dollar subscription increase on January 1. Unlike most magazines, we announce our increases in advance, and we take a little flack as a result. But, we feel that our subscribers deserve to know first and should be given the opportunity to get the "best deal." Call, fax or write now; the renewal details are on the coupon in the center of this issue.

Club News. Although the major collector events of the year are past, an amazing number of clubs have get-togethers on a monthly basis; in fact, two dozen monthly meetings are planned for the busy holiday month of December. Of particular note is the change of date for the annual AWA conference — the new dates are Sept 6 to 9, 1995.

Happy Holidays and happy collecting from all of the Antique Radio Classified team — John, Scott, Lisa, Cindie, Bobby, Chris, Dave, Dick, Dorothy, Jean and Ray!

OOPS!

Both Tom Murray and Gerard Faassen assure us that we were incorrect in our caption on page 16 of the November 1994 issue. The predawn buyer with the flashlight is Tom Murray of Rochester, N. Y. Identifying radio night prowlers is not always easy.

ON THE COVER

Our cover cartoon is from the December 22, 1923, issue of Radio Digest Illustrated. The same issue hails the fact that 1,500,000 citizens heard President Coolidge's message to Congress. Today's media saturation would amaze the listeners of 1923.

WITH THE COLLECTORS

The Clinton Manufacturing Company

BY JAMES A. FRED

A.R.C.'s August 1994 cover featuring a Clinton Model 633-P table radio, held aloft by Geoffrey Bourne at the recent ARCA '94 Convention in Little Rock, Arkansas, inspired Jim Fred to tell us more about Clinton — the radio company, that is. The several responses to Jim's ad in A.R.C. for information on Clinton radios demonstrates the importance of radio history to so many collectors. (Editor)

The third edition of Ghirardi's Radio Trouble Shooter's Handbook lists the Clinton Manufacturing Company as having made radios with twelve different names on the cabinet. The trade names listed are the following: Clinton, Corona, Crusader, Cub, Bostonian, Federal, Buckingham, Harmony, Marshall, Nightingale, Universal, and Westminster.

The Clinton radios were usually identified by an orange label on the rear of the chassis. I have one plastic cabinet radio that has an orange decal instead. Most of the label space is taken up with a list of all the patent numbers under which the radios were manufactured. Near the lower left corner is the notation "Plant 'A' Chicago."

During the 1930s, there was a large number of "private brand" radio manufacturers in Chicago, Illinois. A "private brand" radio is one that doesn't have the name of the manufacturer on the dial or cabinet. These sets were made by companies with low overhead. One exception might be the Wells-Gardner Manufacturing Co. in Chicago. To identify these companies without revealing their names to the general public, the Radio Manufacturers Association (RMA) assigned a letter code to any company that requested one. I've seen

Plants "F" and "P" but have no idea which companies they represented.

I wanted to know how many years Clinton was in business, so I wrote to the Chicago Public Library for information. After about three months, I received some copies of pages from a book entitled A Certified List of Domestic and Foreign Corporations, compiled by the Illinois Secretary of State's office for the mid-1930s.

The first entry for the Clinton Manufacturing Co. is at 128 North Clinton St., Chicago, in 1933. The name "Clinton" was taken from this location on Clinton Street. Nathan Siegel is listed as the company president. He continued as president at the next listed address in 1934 — 1217 West Washington Blvd., Chicago.

There are no listings for 1935 or 1936. In 1937, the company was still at 1217 W. Washington Blvd., but the president was Louis Eller. By 1939, the Clinton Manufacturing Co. was no longer listed as a domestic corporation in Chicago, Illinois.

I have a Clinton-built tombstone with the name "Monarch" on the nameplate. A black label on the back of the chassis reads "Made by C M Co" and includes a Clinton manufacturing logo. Front and rear views of the Monarch tombstone are shown in Figures 1 and 2, and the logo, which seems unique to this radio, is shown in Figure 3.

Another example of a brand name radio produced by Clinton is the "La Salle," shown in Figures 4 and 5. Note the orange label with "Plant 'A' Chicago" on the back of the chassis.

As indicated by the Ghirardi list, Clinton also used the "Cub" trade name. The empty cabinet of a Cub radio is illustrated in Figure 6. A "no-name" radio possibly manufactured by Clinton is shown in Figures 7 and 8.

I have found several Clinton-made radios with the name "Universal Battery Co." on the dial or nameplate. The Mallory-Yaxley Encylopedia lists 22 different radios with the "Universal" name. These radios operate on 6 Vdc, 32 Vdc, or 110 VAC.

Of course, Clinton marketed some radios under its own name. A Clinton Model 58PG is shown in Figure 9.

I advertised in A.R.C. for information on Clinton radios and received letters from several collectors seeking radios made by Clinton or information about them. Those who supplied information or photos are listed at the end of this article.

One correspondent reported that he has a Catalin cabinet with a Clinton chassis that has the orange Plant "A" label on it. The set looks exactly like the Sonora Coronet Model KM (Sideli, p. 122 and Collins, p. 60).

A letter from Wes Chatellier of Louisiana tells about his going to work at the Clinton Radio Manufacturing Co. in August of 1936. His first job was to repair radios returned to the factory during the warranty period. In three months, he was promoted to the line that made TRF radios for Walgreen drugstores, which sold them under the "Aetna" name.

His next job was that of a "phaser." This was the name given to a radio technician who aligned antenna, RF, oscillator, and IF tuned circuits in radios. At that time, radio factories used "screen rooms," 6 to 8 feet square, to prevent electrical interference from disrupting the alignment of radio receivers. They were called screen rooms because they had 2 x 4-foot frames covered with copper window screening inside and out. The screen was usually grounded.

If a set came down the line that couldn't be aligned, it would be tagged and set outside the booth or screen room to be picked up by a repairman. One set they built was a huge 4-band superheterodyne on a plated chassis with a dial nearly a foot in diameter.

Wes worked at the Clinton plant for about two years and left in 1938. He remembers that the company had a free picnic for employees each summer.

Another Clinton collector, Jay Kinnard, who lives in Texas, wrote that he knows of a Firestone radio made by Clinton. He also knows of a Corona that looks like the Aetna Model 300 shown in Evolution of the Radio, Vol. 1, p. 106. This kind of information shows that the Clinton Manufacturing Co. would make a radio with any name on it as long as a customer wanted to pay for it.

I was fortunate that a friend, Dan Szablewski of Vintage TV and Radio Supply in Cleveland, Ohio, found a large, 3-color brochure showing the radios made by Clinton in 1938. The brochure shows the following: (2) wooden TRF table models, (14) wooden superheterodyne table models, (1) battery portable, (4) automobile radios, (8) plastic table models, (1) table model with phono, (6) consoles, and (2) chairsides. All are described in detail with prices.

These radios operated on 2 Vdc, 6 Vdc, or 110 Vdc. They were broadcast band only, 2-band, 2½-band (2.4 Mc to 7 Mc), and 3-band radios. With such a complete line of radios, I wonder why the company went out of business in 1939. Did it change its name?

If any reader has additional information about Clinton, I would welcome it. I published two Clinton radio newsletters in 1992, and any reader may have one by sending $1.00 for each, to cover postage and printing.

Zenith Model 805

BY RICHARD ARNOLD

Zenith has been a respected name in innovative radio and television for over 75 years. It all began in 1919 when two radio operators, Karl Hassel and R.H.G. Mathews, formed the Chicago Radio Laboratory and began to manufacture radio equipment. In 1921, Eugene McDonald, Jr., a wealthy investor, joined them, and in 1923, they formed the Zenith Radio Corporation. McDonald became the president of the corporation.

In an advertisement reproduced in the book on Zenith by Alan Jesperson et al., the Zenith Corporation proudly proclaims that "Zenith is one of the real pioneers in shortwave reception. Zenith built the first shortwave commercial receiving sets in 1925."

Zenith was an early innovator in the development of portable radios, home receivers running on alternating current, and push-button receivers. The Great Depression caused sales to drop dramatically, but the company survived.

THE ZENITH MODEL 805

The compact radio technology, first introduced in 1931, was still showing up by 1934 in the production of smaller midget (cathedral) radio receivers. One example of these smaller cathedrals is the Zenith Model 805, a 5-tube superheterodyne that measures only 15¼" x 12½" x 8½". The set uses the following tube types: Type 6F7 as 1st detector/oscillator, Type 6D6 as IF, Type 75 as 2nd detector and AVC, Type 42 as audio power tube, and Type 80 as rectifier.

An ad for the Zenith 805 in the Jesperson book states that the set features "Triple filtering, hairline shadow dial indicator to permit easy tuning. Tuning range of two bands covering 535 to 5,000 Kilocycles. Tunes American stations, both police bands, amateur, and aviation conversation. Price: $29.95."

Sadly, time was running out for "midget radios" like the Model 805. By the late 1930s, very few, if any, were being made. The new "age of the compact radio" had arrived.

Zenith's Triple Filtering

"Triple filtering is the Zenith scientific development in shortwave radio reception, which changes mere audibility into delightful entertainment. Instead of wavering, sputtering, unreal sounds, which give no conception of what is being transmitted in the broadcasting studio, triple filtering brings in brilliant, vital tone pictures in accurate focus.

"Zenith offers 'split second' tuning. By means of a third hand, like the minute hand on a watch, it is possible to separate accurately the closely crowded foreign shortwave channels. Once logged, it is easily possible to relocate a foreign station. An exclusive Zenith feature.

"Every Zenith triple filtering set develops the efficiency of three additional tubes. This is possible through the recent development of dual and triple purpose tubes."

From "Zenith Radio" by Alan Jesperson et al. This book is a 60-page, 11 x 17 picture and specifications paperback book covering Zenith receivers from 1921 to 1946. It is available for $25, plus $4 shipping, from Alan Jesperson, P.O. Box 17338, Minneapolis, MN 55417.

Vintage Wireless Record Players
Technological Marvels of Yesteryear

BY DOUG HOUSTON

History records the romantic stories of how radio flooded our society in the late 1920s, seemingly obliterating the phonograph. This is only partially true, for it was in 1925 that electronically recorded and reproduced records produced quality equal to that of radios. Victor and Columbia first adopted electrical recording in early 1925, and that revolutionary transition was the foundation of the phonograph's survival through the early thirties.

In 1926, radio/phonograph combinations, such as the Victor RE-45, shown in Figure 1, were being marketed. These first combination instruments were priced out of reach of the mass markets, and they found their way into the homes of only the very wealthy. At first, cone magnetic speakers reproduced the sound, but cone dynamic speakers replaced them, producing sound that must have shocked many listeners into near trauma. The performance was overwhelming!

By 1930, however, many families had owned their acoustic phonographs for ten or more years, and the sound from them was woefully obsolete. "Radio" sound was what the public wanted. But that year was not a good one for many to invest in a new radio/phonograph combination. There had to be a less expensive way out.

PHONOGRAPH ATTACHMENTS

The answer was phonograph attachments which were offered by many of the radio makers. With circuit changes and appropriate switching, the radio owner could have the advantages of a phonograph combination without having to buy a whole new unit.

With the necessary switching, many manufacturers provided a means of breaking into the audio input of the set for a phono attachment. Since RCA was the world's major record producer, it is no mystery why the company provided a big percentage of its sets with phonograph terminal boards in the early 1930s, and later incorporated phono jacks for attachments to plug into radios.

But, many of the AC sets that were candidates for phonograph inputs had strange methods of controlling volume. These were unlike the volume control of audio input that began to appear in the mid-1930s, which is still the convention today. Also when the phonograph is switched on, the receiver circuitry must be disabled somehow, so that the phonograph has exclusive use of the set's audio channel. There are many earlier radios where controlling volume and disabling the receiver are difficult to bring about with simple switching.

THE PHONOGRAPH OSCILLATOR

In 1934, RCA began to market a "phonograph oscillator" for use with any radio. This unit translates the phonograph's audio output to some frequency on the broadcast band, where the phonograph could be tuned in like any regular radio station. This oscillator had to draw power from the set, and its output was hardwired to the radio's antenna terminals, making technician services necessary on some installations.

THE WIRELESS RECORD PLAYER

Around late 1939, an oscillator like the RCA device began to appear, built into record players and capable of radiating a signal to nearby radio receivers. This "wireless record player" had to have a radiating range imited to 50 feet or less,

This product was a boon to the owner of a good radio, because the best of both worlds was available for the cost of only the record player. Additionally, the player could be carried to other places, and the family radio could become the PA system for a dance when the family entertained.

It is understandable that wireless record players were a bit more costly than simple phonograph attachments. This is the reason that most wireless players were single play units. However, there were a few models with record changers for those who were willing to go the extra bucks for this very desirable feature. Shown in Figure 5 is a very handsome model with a record changer by Motorola.

HOW WIRELESS RECORD PLAYERS WORKED

There were many circuits utilized for the many makes that were sold over the years, but in all cases, there was a low power oscillator using typically a pentagrid tube, such as Types 6A7, 6SA7, and 7B8, with a rectifier tube, perhaps a Type 25Z6. In all cases, the pickup cartridge modulated the oscillator as it generated the AM broadcast band carrier. The pickup cartridge was usually the high output crystal type, generating around 2.5 to 3 volts. This high output could provide good modulation of the oscillator.

Some models tuned to the high half of the band, and others were designed to tune through the low end. The majority of the designs utilized a third conductor in the line cord to serve as a transmitting antenna.

Philco coupled the output of the oscillator into the line, operating as a "carrier current" transmission. This system worked rather well. There was always a screwdriver-adjusted trimmer capacitor for tuning the record player to a quiet spot on the dial. Two Philco wireless record players from 1941 are shown in Figure 6. Interestingly, these players used transformer power supplies. Most wireless players were AC/DC devices.

FIDELITY

Insofar as fidelity was concerned, that issue was at the mercy of the radio receiver's selectivity curve and the quality of the pickup cartridge. Consider that by 1938, there was a rather impressive choice of receivers available with variable bandwidths. These receivers do justice to the best high fidelity stations even today. So the real fidelity bottleneck was the records themselves.

WHAT ABOUT FM?

Frequency Modulation (FM) broadcasting began in 1941. The radios that had FM bands were expensive, and were generally found at the top of the line for a particular brand. There were excellent FM tuners by General Electric, Motorola, Meissner, and a few others. But when all FM sets were added up, even at the dawn of 1942, a market for FM wireless record players would have been too limited to be worthwhile. Another difficult problem was oscillator frequency stability in the 42-50 megacycle band. FM wireless phonographs were just not practical!

THE DECLINING YEARS

World War II spelled the end of many fine things with which technology had blessed us. Among these was the wireless record player. Several driving factors converged to do away with this convenient little instrument. First, the public had been starved for radios during the war years, and when production resumed, all companies offered radio/phonograph combinations in all levels of their lines. These sets were affordable and easily sold, considering that the buying public had a bad case of bulging pockets, fattened during the war years.

Recorded music had become a strong market, and people with expensive tastes were very willing to pay the price for some of the high quality radio/phonograph combinations that were offered. Manual-play record players also attracted attention away from the faithful old wireless player. In addition, with so many new broadcast stations flooding the AM band, a "quiet spot" was all but impossible to find on the band.

And if that were not enough, the high fidelity explosion of the 1950s drove the final nails into the coffin of the wireless record player.

Now some of us find ourselves with one or more of these wireless players in our collections. Generally, they can be put into as-new operation. But with operation still a bit tricky on the currently jam-packed AM band, the players are more ornamental than functional. They were certainly an item of envy in their day and another thing that made the good old days good!

Tip For Termites

Dear Editor:

If you have termites in your radio, hi-fi or speaker cabinets, pop them in the freezer overnight. Bizarre? It works. Remove the chassis? Older models may have been through more freeze/thaw cycles than you have.

Sparton Questions

Dear Editor:

Does anyone know the history and purpose of the Sparton Type 70 "Dual Grid Control Tube" (6.3-volt filament)? Was this Sparton's equivalent of the Arcturus Wonderlick? The grids are interlaced for identical grid characteristics.

Norman S. Braithwaite, Redding, CA

Dear Editor:

Okay Sparton collectors, I have a Model 987 that has a small window escutcheon and a knob, directly below the window, with a smaller opening than the other five knobs on the cabinet. Inside the cabinet there is a 5-inch circular depression in the cabinet splitting the shelf the radio chassis sits on. I have the service manuals where there is no mention of this depression, nor is there any mention in Rider's. The Sparton service manual shows a picture of a Model 1567 with the same window and knob as the Model 987 that I have.

I enjoy your magazine and find it to be very helpful. I've recommended it to a number of new collectors. Keep up the good work.

Searching For IF Sweeper

Dear Editor:

Years ago (1939), I was a kid out of high school, and I worked for a radio man. On his bench was a generator that I now believe was a sweeper for IFs of that era. He was a very precise engineering type and did not tune IFs by peak meter reading. The generator was about 7" x 8" x 4" in size and had several controls on it. The main feature was a disk in the center of the panel with a line across it. He would zero the disk, set his frequency and range, and switch on the rotatable disk. I suspect it was a setup similar to a band spread capacitor rotating 360°. The instrument, as I remember it, was a manufactured unit, maker unknown to me now. I would like to find one, if any exist.

Good Ad Response

Dear Editor:

I advertised a small transistor radio in the July issue of A.R.C. and had a very good response. I sold it to the first person who called from South Florida and then had phone calls from South Carolina and Pennsylvania. Last week, I received a letter from Italy! How about that! Thanks very much for publishing these ads.

Seeks NBC Fourth Chime Info

Dear Editor:

I am sure almost everyone is familiar with the 3-tone chime that became the trade mark of the NBC network back in the early days of radio. This chime consists of the notes "G," "E," and "C" and was used to announce the network. These notes were supposedly chosen because of the affiliation of the General Electric Corp. and NBC. The announcer would announce, "This is the NBC radio network," and then the three chimes would sound.

Sometime in the 1930s, a fourth tone was added to the chimes to announce that a special news bulletin was about to be aired. This fourth chime was used to announce the crash of the dirigible Hindenburg at Lakehurst, New Jersey, in 1937, the bombing of Pearl Harbor in 1941, and other special bulletins throughout World War II.

I am trying to find out what the fourth chime note was. Was it a repeat of one of the other three notes or a separate note? When was it first used and when was it discontinued? Would anyone have a recording of a broadcast using the four chimes?

If any readers out there might have information on this subject, please write to A.R.C. so it can be shared.

Seeks Tube Rebuilding Service

Dear Editor:

Since antique tubes are getting scarce and expensive, people are putting up with used or weak tubes or a transistor substitute hidden in a dead tube. Why hasn't someone looked into opening these tubes and replacing the filaments and resealing them? If the old timers in the early days could do it with the probably crude equipment available then, why can't it be done today? I know that picture tubes have been regunned when the thorium has worn out.

EMERSON MODEL UNKNOWN – In its Ingraham cabinet, this set appears to be portable, but nothing of the kind! It is strictly an AC/DC set, with a tube complement of (2) Type 7B7s, (1) 12SR7, (1) 12SA7, (1) 50L6, and (1) 35Z5. There is no model number, and the year is in question. If you can furnish this information, please write to A.R.C. (Robert and Shirley Schafbuch – Carrollton, KY

DUMONT MODEL RA 346 – These 1956 sets are unique in that both clock and non-clock versions have the same identification label, tube layout, and model numbers. ZENITH MODEL 9-S-232 – Now also known as a "Walton" radio, this ca. 1937 set is the export version employing 9 tubes. It does not have the motorized tuner but does have a selectable operating voltage and a phono input on the rear of the chassis. (Herb Parsons – Peabody, MA)

Making Crystal Detectors As A Hobby

BY WALTER WORTH

Crystal sets and detectors have assumed a greater role in radio collecting in the last few years. Some collectors already number their crystal sets in the hundreds. Others are just becoming interested in starting collections while crystal sets and detectors are still reasonably available.

I say "reasonably available" because, while they are still not exactly easy to come by, these sets are not prohibitive in price yet either. Maybe I should temper that phrase, since some might call even the present prices for a detector out of reach. Still, if you have ever wished to own a rare crystal detector, as I have, you have another option — make your own.

Which leads me to the reason for writing this article — to introduce you to the pleasure of making your own detectors. But first, remember that these are only reproductions of originals and are not to be confused with the real thing!

Making your own detectors is a fun way to exercise your skills in the forming of sheet brass and the grinding, plating and polishing of brass shapes. Materials used are square, hexagonal, and round brass rods, as well as other brass pieces from the early days. I have made all my detector stands using only hand tools and a grinding/buffing wheel, so no one should be discouraged by the lack of machinery.

Here are some of the tips I would like to pass on so that you may come to think, as I do, that making your own detectors is doubly rewarding. Having the joy of planning and fabricating the parts and the satisfaction of the completed part takes a minimum of dollars but gives a lot of pleasure! It may also be the only way you can own at least a facsimile of a certain rare detector.

I got interested in making detectors by studying the pictures of detector stands in old magazines, recent books on the subject, and of course, the book Vintage Radio by Morgan E. McMahon. Out of all these sources, I chose a few items that have good, clear pictures (preferably with dimensions) and, for the most part, are unobtainable at affordable prices. I especially gravitated toward ones with unique designs of cat-whisker motion or crystal-cup mobility, as these qualities further tested my shop skills. They also were readily identifiable as belonging to certain well-known manufacturers.

Some of the results of my efforts are pictured in Figures 1 through 8. Some of these detector stands had no dimensions accompanying the original picture, so I had to approximate the sizes of individual parts to make the finished stand well balanced in overall appearance.

MAKING BALL AND SOCKET MOTION TYPE DETECTORS

I made the detectors with the ball and socket motion on the detector cup or cat-whisker part from the ball and socket joint of early wall lamps of the 1930s. These have spring-loaded balls and are hollow inside to pass the electrical wires through, making them easy to work with. The ball joint on the cat-whisker arm for the "Jumbo Jove" detector, shown in Figure 1, was made from half-hard brass strips (this material is very springy). The ball joint was cut, sanded smooth and "nickel-plated" before assembly. The ball is from an early lamp joint with the post soldered on top of it.

The "nickel plating" is nothing more than a coating of 60/40 solder applied over the whole surface of each brass part before tapping out the holes and before final assembly. The raw finished part was first sanded, polished, degreased, and then coated with soldering acid applied with a brush. The parts then were held with pliers and heated over a Bernz-o-matic torch until the solder rubbed over each part melted and ran over all the surfaces. While still hot, the part was quickly wiped off with a towel. It then looked like a freshly plated part — bright and shiny.

If the holes in the part become filled with the solder, they can be cleaned out by striking the part against something solid while the solder is still molten.

After the parts were plated in this way, the drilled holes were tapped out, and the subassemblies were reheated to solder the parts together using 1/16" diameter 60/40 solder to make a neat fillet joint. [True nickel plating can be applied, if desired. See A.R.C., March 1993.]

I used a variety of base materials for mounting the parts — wood, Bakelite, and marble as dictated by the originals. The marble came from the throw-away bathroom sink cutouts from artificial marble slabs. These can be obtained from kitchen remodelers who hand-cut these pieces to fit various sink styles ordered by the home owner. These slabs are 3/4-inch thick pieces and can be cut with ordinary saws and sanded smooth, yet they look like real white marble. The Bakelite bases vary from 1/4-inch to 1/2-inch in thickness according to the specific description of the original stand. Corners should be rounded off and the sides sloped by sanding and then buffed to original sheen.

MOUNTING THE PARTS

After the various finished parts were all completed, I placed them temporarily on the base. I planned a logical layout and marked the locations of the mounting holes. The pilot holes were drillled from the top side. The underside of these holes was then countersunk to accommodate the wires and the mounting bolts.

After drilling and countersinking the base, and before mounting the parts, you must rout out a groove to recess the wires that connect the binding posts to the cat-whisker or crystal cup. I did this with a small 1/16" x 1/2"diameter saw blade held in a high-speed router. Take extra care in this procedure by fastening the base securely in a vise, and using two hands to rout out the straight line between the two appropriate holes. I used #16 enamel-covered copper wire to complete the wiring so the routed-out groove did not have to be deep.

In selecting taps and dies, I stuck with 6-32 and 8-32 sizes to keep in line with old-time practice.

MAKING CRYSTAL CUPS

Crystal cups can be made by using a 3/8-inch long section of 3/4-inch diameter brass pipe. Saw off the section, and square up the ends. Then cut and grind a 1/16-inch thick piece of brass to make a "coin" of brass that will almost fit into one end of the pipe section. By tapering the outer diameter of the coin, you can force it into one end of the pipe section for a tight mechanical fit. The coin is then soldered into place and plated. Later, drill and tap the 1 (or 3) holes in the side of the cup for the screws that hold the crystal in place. I used 4-36 taps, as I had plenty of that size screw.

MAKING CAT-WHISKER SHAFT BALLS

The cat-whisker shaft balls can be made out of 1/2-inch diameter brass rod by grinding a half ball on one end and then undercutting the other end to complete almost a rough ball shape. Finish grinding and buffing can be facilitated by drilling a pilot hole through the center and mounting the rough ball on a tapered steel shaft.

Anyone with a metal lathe of course, can do this job in one-tenth the time on a brass rod held in a collet.

Buffing the ball and plating it as above finishes the piece. Before drilling the finished hole in the ball though, select the rod you will use for the shaft and make the hole to suit the rod. The rod should be a smooth, sliding fit in the ball with no side shake.

This is often accomplished by having some type of friction arrangement such as exterior springs over the rod, split balls, and in the case of the Kilbourne & Clark types, a brass clip screwed to the ball surface and riding along the rod. This last method is very positive and a pleasure to use as it is so silky smooth.

Note the several ways to mount the ball shown in the pictures. The Murdock replica, shown in Figure 8, has no ball at all but merely a spring and two convex washers between the uprights. To effect tension on the sliding rod, you must bend the complete spring in a vee-shape before assembling, so that it makes good contact with both the rod and the supports and provides some friction for sliding and tilting motions. The uprights have concave recesses.

I have made the various cat-whisker shapes from a selection of tension springs from my junk box. Choose those with a fine wire so as to lower the pressure on the crystal surface. Remember, a galena crystal needs only a very light pressure to be really sensitive.

I selected early binding posts, both Bakelite and metal, depending upon the type of detector that I am in the process of making. The earliest posts, of course, were the metal ones. The handles I used are, for the most part, unusual binding post tops — the larger the better, as long as they looked like the original ones.

I made the round Bakelite parts, as well as a few handles, by chucking the raw stock on a mandrel in my ⅜-inch electric drill which I then clamped in a vise. Turning was done by placing a stick resting on the floor and using the top end as a tool rest to round up the work and groove the handle surface. I finished up by sanding and buffing as before.

I place the name and model number of the detector stand on a tag on the bottom to remind myself of the original design and to assure others of the source.

It is also fun to make a replica of complete crystal sets if a sufficiently detailed photo is available. I have attempted reproductions of board-type crystal sets with loose couplers etc., unusually shaped sets, and really weird sets that I have no hope of ever seeing on the market. Illustrations of other replicas are shown in this article.

For anyone with simple hand tools and an interest in making reproductions for what they are, this is a fascinating way to add to your collection and your knowledge of early detector stands.

I am now dreaming of making a triple detector stand — á la Wireless Specialty Apparatus (W.S.A.) — and also adding some glass-enclosed types, if I can locate some proper glass tubing.

(Walter Worth, 2 West Elm Ave., Wollaston, MA 02170)

At age fifteen, Walter Worth began saving his paper route money to buy parts for 1-tube sets. Then, in 1986, fifty years later, he started to collect anything that needed cabinet work. His diverse collecting tastes include crystal, 1920 battery, AC, and multiband sets, as well as novelty radios. He also collects early tubes and both horn and cone speakers.

CD ALBUM REVIEW

"Quality Shout"
CD Album by Vince Giordano's Nighthawks

BY ROBERT LOZIER

What's a CD review by Robert Lozier doing in A.R.C.? Well, for years, I have been collecting broadcast receivers and have many on display in my home. In addition, I enjoy preparing receivers for exhibition. A lot of people who see the equipment want to hear the quality of sound that it can reproduce.

As a result, I have built several AM radio transmitters and audio amplifier systems that make it possible to play various radios on display. It is easy to find old radio broadcasts and big band music of the late 1930s and 1940s to use as a program source for the demonstrations. (I sure don't want to demonstrate these sets using the pop music of the 1990s!)

On the other hand, even 1930 and 1940 program material does not sound right coming out of a 1920s vintage receiver. Finding old records of that era and dubbing them onto tape cassettes is one method that I have used for years. However, that takes a lot of time and special equipment if you are determined to do a good job. I have heard a number of commercially distributed records and tapes of original 1920s recordings; the audio quality ranges from good to simply awful. Nevertheless, another option is available, and that is to get modern performances of these early pop tunes.

Over the past 30 years, there have been many albums of 1920s vintage music released, but none have come close to the faithful renditions delivered by the band known as "Vince Giordano's Nighthawks." These New York-based musicians are full-time workers at their craft, and to be fully employed means that they must be willing to play many types of music. In the light of this reality, it is truly remarkable how well they can suppress more modern influences and match their technique to the playing of so many years ago.

Vince Giordano

The Nighthawks' latest offering, "Quality Shout," is a collection of hot, small and big band jazz tunes from 1923 to 1931. Many of these hot tunes did not sell a lot of records during their day, but to present-day fans of this style of music, the 22 tunes of their latest offerings are jewels of the genre.

The producers of this album have even attempted to balance the recording of the instruments to approximate the overall sound heard on many recordings of the day. The recordings are in stereo, but I find it a little more satisfying to listen to this album on mono.

The album is a 1993 recording by Stomp Off Records (Stomp Off CD 1260). It is available on cassette and CD in local record stores or directly from Vince Giordano. Cassettes are $12 postpaid, and CDs are $17 postpaid. Mail your order or call: Vince Giordano, 1316 Elm Ave., Brooklyn, NY 11230-5916. (718) 376-3489.

MEET & AUCTION REPORT

VRPS/AWA 1994 Convention and Auctions
Irving, Texas — October 14-16

COMPILED BY GEORGE AND MICHAEL POTTER

The 19th annual convention of the Vintage Radio & Phonograph Society (VRPS) and the Antique Wireless Association (AWA) was held October 14-16, 1994, at the DFW Airport Holiday Inn, South Irving, Texas. Around 420 people attended the 3-day event.

VRPS celebrated 20 years as an organization with recognition of nine active charter members and a large anniversary cake. Paul D. Davis, the banquet guest speaker, recounted the events at Texas Instruments, where, as a project manager, he witnessed the development of a breadboard prototype, which led to the final development of the Regency TR-1. The old equipment contest included 110 entries.

This 1994 convention included four major auctions — 2 silent auctions and 2 main auctions. Auction proceeds came to $50,563 for 900 items — up $15,000 from the 1993 auctions! In record time, 900 pieces of equipment were sold by Michael Sherman, who is the best auctioneer I've seen in 22 years of radio collecting!

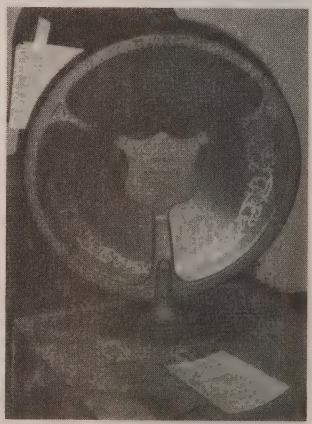
Some of the more significant equipment sold in the auctions were the following: an Atwater Kent 3-panel wooden advertising display for $600, a mint Crosley Musicone in its original box with warranty tag for $220, a Radiola V complete for $525, a Clapp-Eastham Radak R-4 for $350, a Stewart-Warner 62T36 Catalin for $400, a rare Zenith G-500 Trans-Oceanic for $350, and a Victor front-mount horn phonograph for $475.

Everyone understands why our Sunday morning flea market is indoors — Texas weather can change with the snap-of-a-finger, and rain it did. The room was full of buyers and sellers, and by noon, even the largest of consoles and Scotts were being wheeled out to new homes.

The following equipment lists include all four auctions. Miscellaneous gear, boxes of tubes and incomplete listings have been deleted.

Every effort was made to observe and describe the equipment sold, but no guarantee is made as to the accuracy of the equipment list. Some sets listed do not have model numbers because none were found either on the set or on the auction form.

This Edison Gem cylinder phonograph – with original cover, boxed cylinder records and a large crane-mounted horn – was entered in the Old Equipment contest.



A beautiful Crosley Musicone speaker with original box and warranty tag went fast at $220.

This impressive row of tombstone radios fills just one of the many tables of auction offerings.

Friday's auction and silent auction. 480 items (approximately 23 passes) sold for a total of $14,924. Silent auction sellers set their own minimums, but the Friday auction had a $10 minimum bid limit. Auction items included tubes, literature, headsets, Bakelite/plastics, transistor radios, microphones, ham gear, wood/metal sets and test gear.

CLUB SPOTLIGHT

Mid-America Antique Radio Club MAARC

The Mid-America Antique Radio Club (MAARC) celebrates its 20th anniversary this year. Founded in the summer of 1974 with a core group of eleven members, MAARC has grown to over 220 members. At least 90 percent of the members live in Kansas, Missouri, and Nebraska; a few are in Iowa and other states. Seven charter members of MAARC still belong to the club.

The club is dedicated to the preservation and documentation of antique radios and associated items. MAARC's main purpose is to provide fraternization among collectors and others with interests in the antique radio field.

While most members are antique radio collectors, a few are serious radio historians. At least half of the membership is young, and thus these members mainly collect transistors and '50s-'60s sets — what is available in the Midwest. Longtime MAARC member, and a present club editor, Bob Stapleford has some 240 battery sets in his collection, and he only adds 2 or 3 sets a year.

The club's name came from founder Bob Lane's name for his own collection — "The Mid-America Antique Radio Museum." For a time around 1979, the club was called the Mid-America Radio and Phonograph Club.

MAARC publishes a 24-page quarterly — The Broadcaster — which provides members with informative articles, club member spotlights, and free classified ads. In April 1979, Bob Lane chose the publication's name, The Broadcaster, from The Crosley Broadcaster and The Kansas City Broadcaster. The Broadcaster was first printed as a club bulletin in June of 1979.

MAARC's logo.

Through the years MAARC activities have included meetings, auctions, swap meets, contests, picnics and public displays. Membership meetings have featured speakers, how-to-do-it demonstrations, and stories from various members on their "latest finds."

The first meetings were held in members' homes and included an annual picnic at Grover Renick's. Later meetings have taken place at The Kansas City Museum, the Solar Tool and Die Company, the KU Regent's Center, the American Legion Club, and the Rainbow Village — all in the Kansas City, Kansas, area.

Presently MAARC sponsors auctions in the spring and fall – April and October, as well as swap meets in the winter and summer – February and July. These well-attended events usually take place at the Best Western Village Hall, located just south of downtown Kansas City, Kansas.

Vacuum Tube Repair Wafers

These tube repair wafers are solid-state devices for quick and easy repair of early vacuum tubes. The wafer is installed by simply sliding it over the tube pins and reinserting the tube into its socket. If the filament is intact, but there is little or no emission, the filament may be lit for best visual effect. However, the tube can be open filament.

No change in radio operating voltages is required. Any number of tubes may be repaired in a radio. If wafers are installed on all tubes, the B+ voltage may usually be reduced without sacrificing volume or sensitivity. Performance will vary between radio models.

IMPORTANT REMINDER

Starting November 16, Remember to Dial the Area Code on All Long-Distance Calls, Including Those Within Your 804 Area Code

Starting November 16, it will be necessary for you to dial the area code when making all long-distance calls.

To make a long-distance call within or outside your area code of 804, dial 1 PLUS (or 0 PLUS) the AREA CODE and the 7-digit number.

This dialing change is necessary because our pool of available telephone numbers is nearly depleted due to heavy customer demand for extra lines.

If you have a computer modem, call forwarding, speed calling, automatic dialing equipment or other telephone equipment that uses stored telephone numbers, you should make sure the equipment is programmed to dial the appropriate area code on all long-distance calls.

The Zenith

TRANS-OCEANIC

The Royalty of Radios

by: John H. Bryant, AIA and Harold N. Cones, Ph.D.

Schiffer Publications Ltd., publishers of the widely acclaimed Philco Radio: 1928-1942 by Ron Ramirez is pleased to announce the imminent publication of The Zenith Trans-Oceanic: The Royalty of Radios by Professors John H. Bryant, AIA and Harold N. Cones, Ph.D.

To be published in late 1994, this definitive work details the previously untold story of the Zenith Trans-Oceanic, the world's most romantic and expensive series of portable radios. Long a companion of kings, presidents, transoceanic yachtsmen and world explorers, the Trans-Oceanic was also carried into battle by American troops in three wars. Its great popularity in spite of a very high price can be laid at the feet of several generations of armchair travelers who used the shortwave capabilities of the Trans-Oceanic as a window on the world. With access to the Zenith corporate archives and their long experience as radio enthusiasts and writers for both the popular and scholarly press, Professors Bryant and Cones present the engrossing stories of the development and use of the Trans-Oceanic throughout its forty year life. They present a wealth of never-before published photographs, documents and information concerning these fascinating radios, their collection, preservation and restoration.

S*A*V*E $3.00!! SPECIAL PRE-PUBLICATION PRICE

The authors are offering a special pre-publication price of $23.95 for numbered autographed copies ordered prior to Dec. 15, 1994. Orders received after that date will be $24.95 plus $2.00 shipping and handling. Order directly from the authors at:

To minimize our typing errors: Please write legibly. Use both capital and small letters. Do not use a dash between words. Carefully write the following numbers and letters (especially in model numbers) since some can look alike; for example 1, l and I (the number one, the capital i and the small L.) Also: 0, O , o, Q and D; r and n; 6, b and G; V, U, u, v and Y; A and R; 5, S and s; 2, Z and z. We try to correct spelling errors, so when using an uncommon word or manufacturer which we might mistake as a more common word or manufacturer, note it so that we do not "correct" it. Editor's annotations are in [brackets].

Advertising is accepted only for early items related to radio, communication, etc. All items must be described fairly; reproductions, reprints and not-original items must be so identified. Advertisers must agree to respond promptly to inquiries and orders, to resolve problems promptly if the buyer is not satisfied, and to comply with a buyer's refund request on unaltered returned items.

The publisher reserves the right to edit ads without notification to the advertiser and to reject ads for any reason. Names other than the advertiser will be edited out of ads. Ads with non-radio-related items will be returned or edited unless the non-radio-related items are for trade of radio-related items, or they are incidental to and appear at the end of an otherwise acceptable ad. The publisher is not responsible for errors due to illegibly written ads or for any other reason.

Clubs: Since club activities receive free coverage on the Coming Radio Events pages, the free 20 words may not be used for club activity ads. See inside front cover for additional information.

CLASSIFIED AD DETAILS

Deadline: NOON ET– 10th of the month!

Classified ads must have a standard heading such as WANTED, FOR SALE, FOR TRADE, FOR SALE/TRADE, SERVICES, MESSAGE, HELP, AUCTION, MEET, etc. This heading is the only bold or all-capitalized words allowed in the ad. Capitalize only manufacturer names, model names, etc. "Wanted" and "For Sale" ads are mixed together to encourage the reading of all ads, including the "Wanted" ads. This standard ad format makes scanning the ads easier.

Before writing your ad, please look over the ads in a recent issue of A.R.C., and try to write your ad in the same style. Full name (or company name) and address is required in all classified ads; we will add it if you forget.

To encourage varied content of the ads, the same classified ad may be run only once per issue and for only two consecutive months. (To run an ad longer, use a boxed classified or display ad.)

Deadline: 1st of the month for all ads with drawings or photos!

Drawings and photos are encouraged as the response to your ad is much larger and the reader knows better what you want or are selling. Send in your drawing or photograph, and A.R.C. will reduce it or enlarge it as needed.

$12.00 per month for each photo or drawing
(If ad is canceled, this amount cannot always be refunded.)

CHANGES & CANCELLATIONS

Please check your ads carefully before sending them in. Once ads are received, it is not always possible to refund the amount sent, pull the ad or make changes.

IMPORTANT — COUNTING WORDS — IMPORTANT

The standard headings: WANTED, FOR SALE, etc., count as one word each time used in an ad. Name, address and (one) telephone number, count as 6 words, regardless of length. Ham call letters and business name can be included in the 6 words and do not count extra. Full name (or company name) and address is required in all classified ads. Each additional word, abbreviation, model number or number group, extra telephone numbers, etc. count as one word each. Hyphenated words count as two words.
